TO OUR ALMA MATER

Here's to our school whose slightest rule
We never broke or disobeyed.
Well, just a few, a time or two,
We bent or fractured, I'm afraid.
But even so, each heart's aglow
With proud affection, real and true.
We all acclaim your worth and fame,
And, Alma Mater, here's to you.

---From The Popular Commencement Book

CLASS PROPHECY

It was one of those warm lazy days in June at the local beach in Cascade Locks (which had grown to quite a large city where everyone spends all their spare time lying on the warm white sand watching the waves roll in. It was one of these same days that I was there lying on the beach thinking of the wonderful times I used to have in Cascade Locks High School, and wondering what had become of all my classmates. I opened my eyes a moment and I saw walking by me a tall shapely blonde, and at once I knew it was Lillian Farrell. She seemed to recognize me for she came over to talk with me. I knew what her fate had been, for she had three blonde girls following behind her. She told me she had to rush off, because she was to meet her husband and their five boys to go swimming. We had planned on a dinner at my home-----to talk over old times.

Just after Lillian had gone, who should come by but Ronald Keyser (the brain). I called to him but he didn't know me, because he turned and started to walk away. I called him again by name and he came over toward me; I knew he was rather surprised to see me there. He told me he was a professor of mathematics at a large university in the East, and was here visiting some friends. I told him about meeting Lillian and of our dinner plans. He agreed to come when I mentioned some of the food we would have. Then he left with the excuse that he was to meet his friends.

I decided to get up and walk around the beach for awhile hoping that I might find someone else I knew. No sooner than the thought entered my mind, I saw Oosla Long standing by the net dog stand. She told me she was working in an office as a secretary. I told her of the dinner, and she seemed very anxious to come----then we said good-bye and I continued on my way.

I was about to leave for my art studio, which I had recently bought, and which was coming along very successfully, when who should appear but one of my old girl friends-----Nancy Minkoff. She had a number of teen-agers with her; I knew they couldn't all be her children, but after we had stopped to talk she told me they were some of her high school students. She had become a well known school teacher, and was teaching English and physical education at one of the large high schools in Cascade Locks. She couldn't have been teaching school but a few years because she still seemed to be sane. She agreed to come to dinner the next night at my house.

Farther down the beach I saw a tall muscular man walking by himself. My heart started pounding and my eyes were bigged out. He turned around and I saw it was only my old classmate Haight (the joker). I remembered reading about his tractor company and the millions of dollars he had made. I went over to congratulate him and also to ask him to dinner----he agreed to come.

It was getting late and I decided I had better head for home. As I started to get in my car, I saw a familiar looking red-haired woman----it was Ellen Seymour. I paused to talk to her, but she was in a hurry to get to a patient's home. I could tell by her uniform she was a nurse. She accepted the invitation to dinner, and then hurried away.

As I was driving home that night I thought of the fun we would have and of my luck in meeting all my class mates, also about how lucky they were in meeting me.

SENIOR CLASS NEWS

Officers of the senior class are: Ronald Keyser, president; Donald Haight, vice president; Ellen Seymour, secretary; and Nancy Minkoff, treasurer.

The seniors were well represented in all school activities and sports. They made money for the skip-day by selling candy and pop at games and then by a comical show given in the afternoon to the students.

The seniors enjoyed the year and we hope the senior class of next year enjoys it as much as we did.

CLASS WILL

The senior class of 1951, being of sound mind (which is a debatable statement to the teachers) do hereby will our abilities and shortcomings to our classmates.

Ellen Seymour—I will my job as Annual Editor to anyone foolish enough to take it.

Ronald Keyser—I will my ability to get out of school work to "Corky" MacKinnon.

Coala Long—I will my quietness in class to Don Snell.

Nancy Minkoff—I will my job as Student Body President to any deserving person who can withstand the noise and commotions without being ready for Salem when school is over.

Donald Haight—I will my football ability to Marvin Duffy.

Alberta Doyle—I will my boldness to Shirley Von Ahn, hoping she uses it more conservatively than I did.

Lillian Correll—I will my abilities as treasurer all to Shirley Von Ahn hoping that she will come through with a sane mind.

JUNIOR NEWS

The Junior class of 1950-51 consists of nine students. The advisor is Miss Ters and the officers are JoAnne Bucher, president; Myrna Roberts, vice president; David Easley, secretary; and Barbra Nelson, treasurer.

Our money making schemes of the year, in which the whole class participated, were candy sales; selling cake, pie, and coffee after basketball games; the Talent Show, which was a success with Corky MacKinnon as "Master of Ceremonies"; and selling the "School Daze".

All of the boys in the Junior class were in sports—football, basketball and baseball. Two of the girls played on the volleyball team. The class was also well represented in the activities of the school—Echo, annual staff, G.A.A., and student council. Myrna Roberts was the Junior Princess for the Junior Prom.

All of the Juniors had a very good time this year planning and taking part in the various activities.

Athletics

The word "Athletics" is written in a black, ornate Gothic script. The initial 'A' is particularly large and decorative, featuring a long, flowing tail that extends downwards and to the left, ending in a series of elegant curls. The rest of the word is written in a similar, but slightly smaller, Gothic font.

VOLLEYBALL NEWS

"If at first you don't succeed, try another method." This year's volleyball team must have tried some new methods because they showed more spunk and energy than ever before. The year hasn't been too successful in winning games, but it has been successful in bolstering up the girls' courage and morale. Two games were won this year in league games. The team defeated Parkdale and Corbett; both were home games.

Success at last! The Volleyball Tournament proved to be the surprise and excitement of the year. Although Cascade Locks lost to Uell in the first round of volleyball, they won the next two games they played. These games were against Corbett, then Dufur. By defeating these two teams, Cascade Locks was able to gain fourth place in the Volleyball Tournament. Proudly the girls displayed this honor because it was the first time it has been won by Cascade Locks. Next year the girls will keep on aiming for the top and perhaps they will make it. Everyone hopes so.

With some new methods, and some renewed energy and spirit, next year's team should come up with as much zeal and spunk as this year's team. May their year be as successful or even better than this one.

PROM NEWS

The prom of 1951 was one of the most beautiful ever to be held at Cascade Locks. The gym, transformed by a fishnet canopy with flying fish and stars, and potted ferns around the floor, provided a perfect Hawaiian setting. One end of the floor was blocked off where the refreshments were served and the couples could sit and rest. The theme was Aloha.

The music was provided by the Columbians of The Dalles and was very good. A splendid time was had by all who attended.

Mrs. Harrison: "Where's that paper you were going to hand in today?"

Ronald Keyser: "Did I promise to hand a paper in today?"

Mrs. Harrison: "You certainly did."

Ronald K.: "Gosh! I've been lying again."

Mr. Forsythe: "What is the difference between results and consequences?"

"Corky": "Results are what you expect; consequences are what you get."

Mr. Eilertsen: "Remember that football develops leadership—now get in there and do as I told you."

Don Snell: "But I don't think I deserve a zero."

Mrs. Krehbiel: "Neither do I, but it's the lowest mark I'm allowed to give."

Mrs. Towne: (pointing to a deer at the zoo)
"Jim, what is that?"

Jim Byers: "I don't know."

Mrs. Towne: "What does your mother call your father?"

Jim B.: "Don't tell me that's a louse!"

DEFINITIONS

Hamburger-----The last round-up.

Elephant-----A useful animal with vacuum-cleaner in front and a rug-beater at the back.

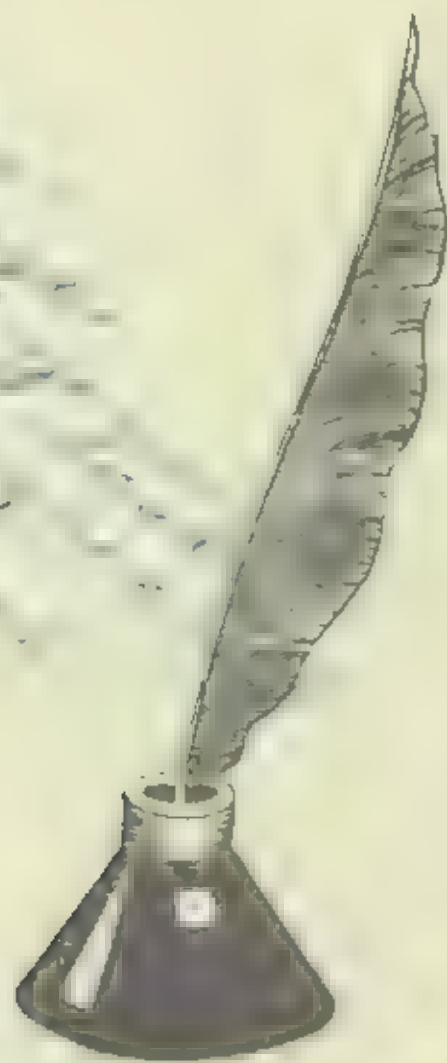

Grapefruit-----The most frequently used American eye tonic.

Modern girl-----A girl who wants to go with every tom, Dick, and marry. She marries for money in order to make her dream come through. She demands the troth, the whole troth, and nothing but the troth. She is not so much concerned with what a man stands for, as what he will fall for. She loves a man for all he is worth.

Opportunity of a lifetime-----A second-hand car. You can always hear it knocking.

You would not knock
The jokes we use
Could you but see
Those we refuse.
